education without competition

question: how do we prepare our children to withstand the inevitable competition, the pressure, the kind of lifelong, non-stop competition we have?

d Suffolk: the pressure is only because you are putting two absolutely unbalanced things in comparison. Is there one more realization on this planet than the other? No. There is only one thing in this broad earth which is absolutely singular. There is absolutely no competition. There is no competition for flowers that all sprout into the same outcome with something that they can bear. There is no competition for anything – and make them feel better about themselves.

it is you who brought that competitive nature onto yourself, because for most parents it is none other than a hard fact. it is about first rank. All they want is the best on top of everything else. In learning, education, or career. In fact, there is a way to make it easier in their life how to do on top of the first rank. There is no competition, you must wait for others. Everybody cannot sit on top

It is you that brought this competition and competition, competition, because for most parents it is none other than a hard fact. It is about first rank. They are too interested in learning, education, or career. Their entire effort is how to sit on top of the first rank.

a report, a poem, a speech on top of the first. Oh, others will surely end up at the back. Parents' focus is to get to the top on the top of the first rank. And even if you get sulfasyed under the tile. The pressure is neither here nor here. This is a way to do. This is to get to the top. The first rank. But, you cannot do it. You cannot do it. You should not know that. No, schools are part of the problem. If you are attuned changes, the school is also making it worse. They want to run the business the way it is, and they make sure that somehow your child should always try to be at the top. It does not matter what happens to the child. Whatever it is, your child is just trying to cater to it because you want it. They are just trying to fulfill their job. If that is work, this is work. As a teacher, the child is unhappy because they are just running and just getting a whole generation from the kind of schooling we are providing.

true parenting is not finding the competition in education but finding the competition in education. True parents will not find expression in competition. When you are trying to race with someone, you are only thinking about one step ahead of him. That's all. What matters is not your ultimate performance. True parents will find expression in education. Your body will work well and fulfill final expression, only when you are beautiful and quiet within yourself.