Vision

For the person whose vision for life is clear and he seeks it every in moment of his life, for him, the highest things will come and fall at his feet.

By Sadhguru Jaggi Vasudev

If you feel the world around you - when I say the world, I mean the human part of the world around you - you will see that your experience is a cacophony of voices, thoughts and emotions. These voices, thoughts and emotions are all an outpouring of confusions of many different levels and states. These voices, thoughts and emotions are formed and expressed with a distorted perception of the current reality. When a man is confused, when he is subjugated by misconceptions or wrong perception of reality then the noise that he creates around himself, the pain and suffering that he creates for the people around him, and the self is unfortunate.

Despite of the facilities available both the individual and humanity remain absolutely confused. If you are sensitive, you will see that people's thoughts and emotions are in a state of confusion. This is the reality today. There is no clarity, will or vision. Most people live their lives without even understanding what they really want for themselves. Even if they know what they want, they have neither the will nor the vision to create what they want. Mostly they settle for whatever is easy and they feel is attainable. Not really seeing whether they really need it in their lives or not.

If you go by your experiences or in other words if you trust your mind to decide what is possible and what is not, what is attainable and what is not then it will always tell you about the mediocre things.

We always try to base our life the current reality. But that is not the point. What we want need not have anything to do with our present situation. If we enslave our vision to current situations then once again we are settling for the attainable. It is not about your thinking what is possible or not possible. It is about your vision, what is the highest that you can seek in your life.

A man's vision is not beyond man's capacity to create it. It may happen in this lifetime, it may take a couple of lifetimes but what we want will definitely come. For the person whose vision for life is clear and he seeks it every in moment of his life, for him, the highest things will come and fall at his feet. It is only because man is seeking things he does not want that he does not get the things he wants

Simply living with the vision itself is very elevating, liberating and a joyous process for any person. The whole Gita is just about this - to simply give yourself to what you want, not caring whether it is going to happen or not. It is a spiritual process by itself.

Vision is an important way of transcending limitations within and outside ourselves. If one wants to live without any vision, without being burdened by will, then the person should be innocent. The person has to have no ego. If it is not so then it is very important to have a vision.

If a man has a will and a clear vision then Lord Shiva has to come down - he has no choice about it. All these things demonstrate to you that if what you want is very clear to you and if you are set on it then what seems to be impossible today will tomorrow become a normal part of your life. But at every moment if you question it and think in terms of attainable or not then the confusion that you create in your mind and the world creates one big chaos. •

If you look deep enough your vision will be the universal vision. Seeking it with undivided attention is a way of knowing life here and beyond.
