What is leadership all about, anyway?

Sadhguru Jaggi Vasudev shares his vision behind creating the recently launched Isha Leadership Academy with Dipal Gala

H e had an instinct. It was a gut feeling that he held on to with all his might. People are not just chasing what the government or bosses tell them to do. There is a larger force within them that is driving most people. They all want to contribute to the society, to the world.

But being driven by instinct is not enough and neither is understanding the force. One needs to be aware of this force. It is the force of individual identity and it is the individual who must lead it. He is the one who will decide how this force will be used. Those who are aware of this force can use it for the betterment of society and those who aren't will use it for their own selfish gain.

The force that Sadhguru speaks of can be described as something that helps people connect with their inner self. It is the force that helps people understand their true identity and realize their potential.

Leadership, according to Sadhguru, is about empowering this force within people. It is about helping them to connect with their inner self and realize their true potential. Leadership is not about being a boss or having a title. It is about being a catalyst for change and helping others to find their true path.

The Isha Leadership Academy is one such initiative that is focused on empowering individuals to be leaders. It is an integral part of the Isha Foundation's vision to create a world of spiritual and social coherence. The academy aims to provide a platform for individuals to connect with their inner self, understand their true identity, and realize their potential.

The academy offers a range of programs and workshops that focus on personal growth, self-awareness, and leadership development. It brings together individuals from diverse backgrounds to share their experiences, learn from each other, and grow as leaders.

The Isha Leadership Academy is not just for individuals who aspire to be leaders. It is for anyone who wants to understand their true identity, connect with their inner self, and realize their potential.

So the question is not about me. I am not doing this for personal gain. If I close my eyes (in meditation), I am in bliss. If I start thinking about what I am doing, I am not.